

Andy Ackerman is an Assistant Professor of Mathematics at Lafayette College. His research focuses on algorithmic bias, high dimensional data integration and inference. He is also deeply involved in curriculum development at the intersection of moral philosophy and applied statistics and an active participant in collegiate ethics bowl. Andy was awarded the 2022 Walter Deemer Excellence in Teaching Award as well as the 2024 Pat Croskery National Coach of the Year Award and Intercollegiate Ethics Bowl National Championship.